

Tamarack Talk

There is so much to be said about "Tamarack" by Roy Campbell (Lincoln MacVegh . . . The Dial Press) that it is difficult to confine a thorough criticism to one small column. Those who are acquainted with Roy Campbell through reading "The Flaming Terrapin" and "The Wayward" will find a rich satire on journalists and writers in South Africa that every newspaperman should read, will be more than pleased with Campbell's new book. Here is a collection of poems that are so powerful, so moving with the essence of earth, fire and water, so altogether overflowing with color and richness that they must necessarily draw the attention of lovers of excellent poetry as well as critics.

If I were to choose one word to characterize Campbell's work, I should say, and I think after reading these poems, "The Flaming Terrapin," many will decide with me, that "fire" is the key word to Campbell. Rarely is there a page in the earliest work in which we cannot find "fire" in the Adams poems we have, besides the frequent use of the word itself, an underlying, subconscious feeling of "fire." The poet himself is on fire, he is incandescent with desire to express himself. How beautiful that he does it so well! How remarkable that he experiences the breath of the parched African soil, goes through the horrors of a devastated existence, and even though his lips are venomous with truth, because the desert starved him into lying, can still come out of the desert and sing of the plains. To sing with the silver lullabies of rain. We come very close to the poet in several particular poems. We can understand his sensations, and we can marvel at his poems while yet consciously reeking with acridity for the desert still express a sense of praise for all that is nature.

"There is no sea so wide, no waste so stern. But holds a future for the sons of strife." There is a great deal in "Tamarack," about poets and poets who are not of the ordinary world, who are the scorned and rejected of men, who must live alone apart from the world, yet who, in the last analysis are the progenitors of the future. Read "Poets in Africa" and "The Making of a Poet." Here is the latter:

In every land there is some poet star.
Who turns the cows and heads each hor-
"Tamarack,"
Till the old folk unite in jealous fear
To hunt him from the pastures where they feed.

Last in the night he hears the fancies crash
And desperately, let his courage fall.
Across his hollow cheeks with something
Scourges the heavy whipcord of his tail.

Far from the phantoms of horns that ward
The sleeping heads he keeps the wolf at bay.
At midnight by slinking leopard speared,
And crouched by the fire-stem through the day.

We find in "The Palm" the same thought of working under duress and oppression.

"Each inch of my glory was wreathed with a crown,
Crowded with fire from the base of my throne
And drawn like a wire from the heart of a stone."

Though I soar in the height with a shape of delight
Lifting my stem like the string of a kite,
Yet through its tense nerve do I measure my mischance.

The strain of its curb is the strength of my fight."

You must read "A Song for the People," "The Serf," "The Zulu Girl," "To a Pet Cobra" to appreciate the depth and penetrating quality in Campbell. You must read "Festivals of Flight" for his little jibe at travel in an unusually keen lyrical manner. In fact, you must read all these poems to see for yourself how beautifully a contemporary poet has constructed a work of art in words. For indeed, Roy Campbell's potency of expression, his lyrical fluency of rich and vigorous words, his collection of poems a treasure for the finest of libraries. It makes us rather read poetry all the more. It demonstrates to us, as do the beautiful poems of Dorothy Bryant, that there are contemporary writers who are making literature.

Things to note when you drive the new Pontiac

The moment you step into this car you will begin discovering pleasant things. First, how easily Pontiac handles the lowering your lightest touch. The slender steel-and-rubber wheel invites a "finger grip" and that's quite sufficient. You use little effort in braking or clutching.

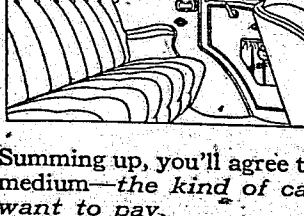

You'll remark the quick getaway . . . the rapid acceleration . . . the smoothly sustained speed. Pontiac has a 60-horsepower engine so ample in size that it need never be overworked. Hence it stays smooth.

You'll experience a new riding ease. Springs are deep, cushions agreeably form-fitting, of course. But more important, Pontiac's chassis is cushioned with live rubber at more than 40 points.

You'll sense extra security in Pontiac. The famous Fisher Body wood-and-steel construction is snugly insulated against outside cold, heat, and dampness. Cool and windshield pillars are built in one piece—a leak-proof, rattles-free construction. The most touch on the big brakes tells the story of unusual stopping power.

You'll find the Pontiac interior tastefully fitted, appointed, finished. Rich long-wearing mohair or whipcord in the closed cars—select leathers in the open models. In all, an atmosphere of fine craftsmanship pleasing to your pride.

Summing up, you'll agree that Pontiac Six is indeed a happy medium—the kind of car you want at the price you want to pay.

*Other body types, in addition to those shown, are the Sport Coupe at $815, and the 4-Door Sedan at $845. One important step in reducing your cost of car ownership is Oakland-Pontiac's policy of equipping its cars ready for the road. The prices you note above are for cars delivered and equipped in Norway. The prices include tires and rear bumpers, four hydraulic shock absorbers, five wire wheels, and extra tire, tube and tire lock. Wood wheels optional at no extra cost.

A Blower of Bubbles

Now just imagine a little bug that knows how to make bubbles so strong that they will not ever burst, but stay shining and round until they are ready to pop. When that time comes they just dry up and become quite hard and crusty.

You have probably walked through the fields and seen numerous little white, foamy bubbles on the grass or clover stems? Would you ever suspect that inside of each bubble was the tiny, buff-colored insect that designed and blew it? Don't you think that it would be just to blow one's own house?

This interesting insect is called a frog-hopper or a spittle-bug, and when it comes out of the egg it looks very much like a miniature submarine. It seems to know just what it is expected to do next, for it climbs up on a grass stalk and begins at once to secrete itself with a shimmering mass of foam.

First of all it puts a drop of sticky fluid on the stem and then with the very special bubble-blowing machine at the tail-end of its body it begins to blow one bubble after another in this way:

Why I Was Late for School One Day

One morning when I woke up it was almost eight o'clock. When I had closed my eyes and was ready for school, it was quarter past eight. I walked along very slowly. When I came to the brook it seemed to say, "Come and wait in me."

Now imagine a little bug that blows bubbles so strong that they will never burst, but stay around until they are not wanted. When that time comes they dry up and become a sticky crust.

I Never Do

I never spill my milk upon my mother's tablecloth,
I never stir my spoon around to meddle with my broth,
I never pass in front of folks without excuse me said,
I never make a fuss when it is time to go to bed.

I never do those dreadful things, (that is, I try not to)
I never do, I never do, I never do—DO YOU?

I never say I will not, or I cannot, if I can,
I never leave my toys about when things are spick and span,
I never tease the kitten or the smaller children dear,
I never, when I hurt myself, will shed a single tear.

I never do those dreadful things, (that is, I try not to)
I never do, I never do, I never do—DO YOU?

I never scribble on my books or anywhere, indeed,
I never cross the street without a great amount of head,
I never shout and slam the doors when quiet I should be,
I never wear a pouty face where anyone can see.

I never do those dreadful things, (at least I try not to)
I never do, I never do, I never do—DO YOU?

Ernest Andrews, antique dealer, recently made a unique find. It's length is full size, but not much over six inches across the top. It might be taken for something from the jungle or for a native lamp. In spite of its size, the tone is full and strong with regulation strings put on left hand. It is a very large one.

An editorial from the Hartford Times, May 15, 1931, says: "Regarding Don Seitz's new book: These may be in some of our distressing times, but they can be read with the reading of good and interesting literature. In that direction, the thoughts run toward what some of our readers may be his magnum opus, Don Seitz's recently published biographical work on 'Lincoln, the Politician' or, as a newspaperman would put it, 'How the Railroadmen and Flatfootmen Played the Great American Game.'"

"The politics is the great American game, and was as far back as the era of Seneca county's famous 'Lion' and 'Lion' can deny. And that Lincoln played it with gusto and hearty enjoyment along with seriousness is certain. The human side of his exploits in the sport, their skill and peculiarity of those of deal would be things about Lincoln specially appealing to Mr. Seitz."

"Something must be done in the interest of the Dutch," Lincoln ordered one day. "I want Schimmelpenninck given one of those brigadier generalships. Starnon 'remurred,' but was obliged to commission General Schimmelpenninck."

"That Mr. Seitz may be trusted to bring into high light episodes which other students of Lincoln might leave in the shadows of omission."

"If the book is nearly as good as our early glimpses into its pages indicate, it should be a treat to read for many. We are venturing to predict that it will be found even better. It is difficult to imagine any book by Mr. Seitz on any subject, were it even 'The Causes of the Depression,' which one might read without clinging to every sentence until encountering with reluctance the very last period."

The president of the Maine Ladies' Golfers Association, called at the Country Club Sunday and extended an invitation to the ladies of the club to attend their meeting at Waterville Country Club, Saturday, May 23, at 10:30 daylight time.

We heard it said: A boy in town, whose "chore" it is to drive home the family cow at night, did so, recently, but neglected to tie up the "critter" and he started off for a game of golf. The cow, whose offspring was within reach, roamed all the milk in the natural way—and father was relieved of a job—as well as the family milk. We wonder what father thinks of golf, and the boy of father.

WHEELER'S CIRCUS COMING

On Tuesday, May 26

Wheeler and Santelle Circus, wild animal show, and Texas Ted's Wild West show will open the season of high tops at Oxford County Fair Grounds between Norway and South Paris.

In the circus world Al F. Wheeler is famed as the wonder showman, as his show has grown from a small wagon show 25 years ago, to its present enormous size. Last winter the combination of Wheeler's New Model Show with those of Sig Santelle's circus wild animal arena and wonderland, and Texas Ted's Wild West Show, makes this one of the greatest motorized circuses.

Among the features of the big show are the only dancing ponies on earth. The only goat right-rope walkers in all the world. The only trained Florida razor-back hogs; these never before trained hogs can understand every word, the trainer, Carl Clark, utters, and what gives them the most credit of plausibility to this statement is the instant obedience of these fierce actors to his every spoken command.

The menagerie is far and away the largest and most complete set of savage beasts ever assembled with a motorized show, and as the fame of the show depends primarily upon its great animal acts, no expense is ever spared to keep it up to its high standard. The show has been unusually generous this year, and, for the second time, the show has been given to the public. The show has been given to the public. The show has been given to the public.

of laugh-provoking clowns, with their trickery and fun, that takes place between the acts, all along the hippodrome track, with a new crop of laugh "gags" that convulse audiences, and many of the "joos" are internationally known.

An outstanding feature with Wheeler and Santelle's Circus is Texas Ted's Wild West Show, Champion trick riders of the world, in a daring, dashing and breath-taking display of horsemanship feats, as horse by cowboys and cowboys; kings and queens of the lariat, an absolutely and overwhelmingly genuine, original western round-up show.

The street parade for which the Wheeler and Santelle's Circus is distinguished, will leave the fair grounds promptly at noon, rain or shine. There are a tremendous variety of features, extravagant displays and superlative condition of people and things in this combined wild animal show and circus, and Wild West street pageant, which has brought an enviable prestige from the wonderful band wagon ablaze with scarlet and silver and green to the outlandish looking clowns in his cart, quarreling with his donkey.

Two face acts are given at the show grounds, immediately preceding each performance. Performances are scheduled for 1:30 o'clock for the afternoon and 7:30 o'clock for the night show. The doors will open one hour earlier.

OXFORD—FORE STREET

Much Activity Along the Street—Twitcheell Moving Barn—Mrs. Lovejoy Dead—Honor Roll.

Flora Cummings, who has been to Norway, Welchville and Yagge since March, returned home the 18th. She left those she's been caring for, doing fine, so she's happy.

Seems good to see the homes all along the street occupied. The Wilson girls are having papering and painting done.

Mrs. Edith Twitcheell and Mrs. Gorman attended the George Locke auction, Saturday, and now that there is to be another, Saturday, no knowing but all of us may be there.

At Twitcheell has been occupied with Smith barn across the road onto it's new side, just south of Fore street schoolhouse, that has employed Ernest Talbot to plow for him. Al's son, Oscar, is riding over Oxford Co. with his grandfather, E. E. Twitcheell, selling fruit. Seemed natural having Ernest again in this street, though working on Al's land.

We learn that our one time neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Clark, have closed up their farm at Livermore and are in camp at Spurr's Corner, Otisfield, where Mr. Clark is working on a wood job.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brown were in Lewiston, the 12th.

At Twitcheell and Miss Glover visited "Uncle David" Staples of Welchville at the Togue Home, recently. Uncle David is ever so much more comfortable than when he moved the home last winter, sick and suffering. But spring calls for him to come sit on his own door step and he longs to get home. To all of us there is no place like home. Poor Uncle David, so alone in the world, old and feeble.

Stanley Haskell of Winthrop with his sister, Miss Alforda, called on friends on this street, the 9th.

Lawrence Brown is teaming for Artemus Grover at Spurr's Corner, Otisfield.

News has come of the death of Maude Lovejoy, daughter of Dennis Cotton, and wife of Chas. Lovejoy of Melrose, Mass., formerly of this street, where their children were born, three of whom are still living, a son and two daughters. Death occurred on her fifty-seventh birthday, April 25. Burial was at Mechanic Falls.

The pupils in the Fore street school, who had one hundred per cent. in spelling for the week ending May 10th, were:

Mary Twitcheell, Alice Grover, Marion Twitcheell, Phyllis Grover, Merle Thompson, Dorothy Twitcheell, Doris Reynolds, Thomas Twitcheell, Paul Steadman.

Mrs. E. E. Twitcheell has returned from Norway, accompanied by her little granddaughter, Geraldine Giles. Alvin Lovejoy is delivering his usual supply of pansies and garden plants.

Saco Valley Larger Parish

Ministering to Lovell, Number Four, Fryeburg Harbor, North Fryeburg, Stow. Rev. Clifford V. Cross in Charge.

The Bible Class met at the Fryeburg Harbor church on Monday evening. This completes the course of study until the fall. To familiarize the public with the nature of the Bible study classes held the past few years, the following is a gist of what has been carried on under the supervision and teaching of Rev. Clifford V. Cross. Three years ago the Bible Class was an innovation at Lovell. The introductory course was "How to Enjoy the Bible". Two years ago at Lovell Mr. Cross instructed the class in the course, "The Life and Writings of Saint Paul". This study proved most redeeming.

Last year, "How the Old Testament Came to Be", was the subject of the course of study. The innovation of these courses at Lovell met with such success that two years ago Mr. Cross introduced the courses at Fryeburg Harbor and last year a study class was organized at North Fryeburg. By way of summary, Lovell has had a three year course in Bible study, Fryeburg Harbor a two year course and North Fryeburg a one year course. These classes met at the home of the various members. At the close of one hour of study, refreshments were served by the hostess, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Such meetings at the homes have been the means of better acquaintance between the pastor, his wife and parishioners. Similar courses will be resumed in the fall throughout the parish as they have not only been helpful in the way of education, but have been socially beneficial to those who participated. The Fryeburg Harbor Ladies' Aid will hold a supper and entertainment at the Methodist vestry on Friday evening, May 22nd.

There will be a change in the public worship services for next Sunday. The Frank Shaw Public American Legion will be the guests at the Universalist chapel in North Fryeburg for the memorial service at 10:30 a. m. The Methodist church at Fryeburg Harbor will unite and participate in the service. Rev. Clifford Cross will be the speaker. The other services for the day will be as usual. North Fryeburg Sunday school at 9:00 a. m. The Fryeburg Harbor Sunday school at 9:30 a. m., the Epworth League at 7:00 p. m. The Lovell village Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. Public worship at 7:00 p. m. in Lovell.
